Dear Fabulous Fifth Graders,

You cannot believe just HOW MUCH I MISS ALL OF YOU. I know it has only been a short while, but I miss our classroom family. I hope that you're still reading books like nobody's business, writing in your journals (remember - you're living through history right now!), and not letting all your amazing math skills get rusty.

Starting next week, check out our school's website. Mrs. McDowell and I have been working hard to create some fun assignments for you to do while we are away. This week you will be working on a decimal project, a fun free write, and taking a virtual field trip to George Washington's Plantation. Don't forget about all our resources available to you: Prodigy, Dreambox, Myon, CODE, Quizlet, Typing Club, and all the workbooks and independent reading books you took home with you. I will be looking for more things for you to do, look at our Clever page and click on "Our Resources."

Please know that you are able to reach me whenever you need, I am still here for each and every one of you. Scooter is happy that I am home with him every day, but I keep telling him that it is only for a short while until I can get back with my kids. Keep reading, keep writing, keep practicing math, keep washing your hands, and keep being kind. To yourselves and to your families. We will be back to our normal school routine before you know it.

Love Always,

Ms. Jimenez ♡
